Apparently we are about to see some n in the field of journalism in Chigo where Marshall Field 3rd, the andson of the man who founded the g store on State street is starting a rning paper to compete with the ibune which has had a monopoly the morning field in the second y of the republic for several years.
r. Field, who is no newspaper man, s a vast fortune which he received the bounce from his grandfather's tate and he has been bankrolling a rious experiment in afternoon daily urnalism in New York for some me. This paper, called PM, which s no ads and sells for a nickel, rned out to be a veritable cell or tter, a hive of Communists and such litical tag-alongs as run with the mmunists. In hiring the original aff, the executives were good to ach out and relieve other publishers some of their most annoying nuis-ces but the editor, Ralph Ingersoll, st said he wasn't interested in the litics of his reporters and writers d hired them for such professional alifications as he thought they had.
hatever the explanation, he never-eless did acquire a staff which, with w exceptions, would have been poically acceptable to the Daily Work-itself.

Mr. Field the other day was quoted having remarked that he didn't ve a damn what happened to his rtune and the Herald-Tribune then terviewed him to the effect that thought we would first have to win e war. Thereafter, he would be will-g to risk the fortune in some new der, but, he hoped, not Fascism. I ven't talked with him at all but out a year ago I did talk at length th Jock Whitney, who was one of e original angels of PM and with gersoll. Whitney clearly had no inntion to be associated with a Comunistic or party line paper and he er bowed out and Ingersoll said, substance, that he was just inter-ted in turning out a progressive blication.

• • •

The paper is vigorously pro-Rooselt and supported the president's war licy during the time when the mrades of the C. P. A. were damn-ng this war as Britain's own and ing their best to sabotage American fense.

From where I sit, Mr. Field is a lit-indistinct, but, in silhouette, this h man has an appearance much e that of Fritz Thyssen, the German dustrialist who threw in with Adolf tler in the belief that Der Fuehrer uld produce a new order in which dustry and the people would enjoy ace and prosperity, although at the crifice of some of their less impornt liberties. Thyssen supported Hit-r until Hitler became so strong that yssen was no better than any other ve of the new order and went over e hill to, I believe, Switzerland.

Mr. Field is a New Dealer from ver to cover and thus, it strikes e, is using his vast inherited fortune promote an order here which, not-thstanding his expressed abhorrence
Fascism, will be Fascism, or Na-nal Socialism, nevertheless. It might en be recognized as Communism cause there is really no difference tween the isms of Benito Mussolini, e little forgotten man of the boot, d Hitler and Stalin. Under the New

177 REGISTERED AT MEETING OF FIREMEN HERE

Shift In Morning Program Made; Caldwell Unable To Attend

Late arrivals Wednesday morning brought the registration at the 36th annual convention of the Louisiana State Firemen's association, in progress at the Virginia Hotel here, to 177 at noon.

A shift in the morning program due to the inability of Mayor Sam Caldwell of Shreveport to attend the convention led to the first speaker on the program being Edward Wright, Houma, who originally was scheduled to follow Mayor Caldwell on the program. Mr. Wright spoke on "Municipalities' Responsibilities in Going to and From Fires." He was followed by Walter K. Grant, municipal engineer, Louisiana rating and fire prevention bureau, New Orleans, who spoke on "A Review of the Hose Thread Situation in Louisiana and Its Relation to Better Mutual Aid."

Dr. Andrew Triche, state supervisor of industrial education, was the last speaker on the morning program. Mayor Caldwell, who is in Washington will be replaced on the program by John McW. Ford, Shreveport commissioner of public safety. Mr. Ford was expected to speak on the afternoon program.

Expected to arrive here in time to address the convention late this afternoon was Constable Scott of London, England, who will discuss fire-fighting experiences in London under war-time conditions.

After a noon recess, a talk by State Fire Marshal C. P. Fournet was scheduled to open the afternoon program. This was to be followed by an address by Major L. A. Newsom, department of safety, Baton Rouge, on

MANDAMUS ON STATE TREASURY GRANTED

BATON ROUGE, La., Sept. 24.—(AP)—District Judge J. D. Womack today granted a mandamus on the state treasury requiring the turning over to State Fire Marshal Charles P. Fournet of $50,000 impounded funds and all future proceeds of the tax originally dedicated to the fire marshal's office.

The state had contended the 1940 general appropriations act had made an annual appropriation for the fire marshal's salary and office expenses and provided any other revenues going to that office should be deposited in the treasury's general fund. Assistant Attorney General A. M. Suthon argued this constituted repeal of the original tax dedication to the fire marshal.

However, Judge Womack ruled with Fournet that the tax, imposed on premium receipts of all fire insurance written in Louisiana, still was dedicated to the fire marshal under a 1914 legislative act as amended in 1936. Approximately $50,000 yield of the tax has accrued in the treasury.

Fournet, appointed to the constitutional office of fire marshal by Governor Sam Jones, several months ago successfully resisted what he said were efforts of State Police Superintendent Steve Alford to have him removed from office. The fire marshal's office under the now partially-invalidated governmental reorganization plan came under the department of public safety headed by Alford.

ARMY TROOPS IN ARGENTINA HOLD AIRPORTS

Number Of Young Aviation Officers Arrested In Swift Moves

THINK NAZIS NIPPED

Developments Cause Excitement In Chamber Of Deputies

BUENOS AIRES, Sept. 24.—(AP)—Regular army troops completed the occupation of all military airports in the country today after arresting a number of young aviation officers in a series of swift moves apparently inspired by fear of an uprising against the government.

Official quarters declined to comment on the sudden developments, which caused a flurry of excitement last night in the chamber of deputies, but some sources linked the government's action with a current congressional investigation of Nazi activities in Argentina.

Raul Damonte Taborda, chairman of the committee conducting the inquiry, said he understood that the officers arrested "included some who have been plotting with a view to putting an end to the investigation."

Taborda made this assertion shortly after news reached the capital that troops had occupied military airdromes at the inland cities of Cordoba and Parana—both of which have large German populations—and were taking over the air fields elsewhere.

The news came as a climax to rumors which spread through the chamber yesterday that a subversive movement was afoot in the three provinces of Interios, Cordoba and Tucuman which would call for swift military action.

As the chamber ended its session late last night, while the nation's highest military authorities conferred in the capital, Eduardo Tessaire, a radical deputy, caused a furor by alleging that acting President Ramon Castillo himself had "joined in totalitarian plotting."

Castillo earlier had denied rumors of unrest in the interior and had declared that the country as a whole was calm.

In addition to the airports at Parana and Cordoba—where only last month suspects in an alleged Nazi plot were

Says Russia In Accord With Eight-Point Allied Program

Maisky Asserts Soviet Will Defend Nations' Right Of Independence

LONDON, Sept. 24.—(AP)—Soviet Ambassador Ivan Maisky declared today that Russian is in agreement with fundamental principles of the eight-point Roosevelt-Churchill peace aims and said she would defend the right of every nation to independence, territorial integrity, and the social order and form of government of its own choice.

"Consistent application of these principles," Maisky told the council of inter-Allied governments, "will secure the most energetic support of the part of the government and peoples of the Soviet Union."

The most pressing task before the Allied governments, he said, "is correct allocation of all economic resources and war supplies with a view to early liberation of all European peoples now oppressed by Hitlerite slavery."

Anthony Eden, British foreign secretary, presided at the council meeting, the first of its kind since Soviet Russia entered the war, and made a special point of presenting Maisky early in the proceedings.

Eden welcomed Maisky as a representative of a people who are "defending themselves with a courage, tenacity and skill which have won the admiration of the world."

The council planned to consider resolutions regarding the Roosevelt-Churchill declaration and the supply

THREE SCHOOLS TO OPEN ON MONDAY

While up to the present time neither the city nor Ouachita parish schools have set a new date for their reopening, the St. Matthew's parochial school and the Louisiana Training institute will open next Monday morning for the fall term, it was announced Wednesday. St. Paschal's Catholic school in West Monroe will also start classes on Monday morning.

St. Matthew's will as usual operate the grammar grades and the high school. Already 240 have been enrolled for the fall term and registrations will be continued Thursday and Friday, and all who have not registered are asked to enroll on either day.

Indications are that St. Matthew's will have a larger enrollment than ever this year.

STORM CAUSES LOCAL DAMAGE

Plays Havoc With Communication Systems, Delaying Services

The tropical storm which is moving inland from the gulf played havoc with communication systems west of Monroe and caused some damage here.

The local office of the Southern Bell Telephone and Telegraph company reported some local trouble caused by falling branches of trees Wednesday morning. The rain and electrical storm here was accompanied by a high wind which blew down a number of trees in the Twin Cities. No other damage was reported.

The News-Star editorial and mechanical forces were severely handicapped by several power failures during the morning. The early Associated Press report was garbled considerably because of wire trouble. Then at 9 a.m. lightning struck a power line, putting the electrical system out of commission in the downtown area and the press machines were idle for approximately two hours. Western Union wires again went out at approximately 12:15 p.m. and had not been repaired at press time. As a result no market reports were received, although most of the other "top" news is included in today's issue.

A bolt of lightning during an electrical storm, which cut off the 2,300-volt line to the river pumping station of the municipal power and light system about 9 o'clock Wednesday morning led to closing down of two substations of the power system and a

Blood Spilled When Troops And Munitions Workers Battle

(By Associated Press)

The Soviet information bureau told of fresh Red army successes on the central front today in the series of Russian counter-attacks and all-out defense efforts between the Arctic and the Black sea.

These operations were pictured here as one means of relaxing German pressure on Soviet armies of Marshal Semeon Budyenny reforming in the Ukraine for defense of the industrial Donets river basin.

The Russians reported defeating Rumanian troops in the siege of Odessa, Black sea port, and declared that a second German attempt to capture Melitopol, Russia's ice-free Arctic port, had ended in complete failure.

Reports that Bulgaria might enter the European conflict met a belated disclaimer by Bulgarian minister of the interior Peter Grabrovsky, who told foreign correspondents in Sofia that his country did not intend to go to war against Russia.

"Bulgaria has no aggressive intentions against anyone," he said. "No pressure of any kind has been exerted

WORKERS VOTE TO STRIKE AT PLANE PLANT

New And Pressing Problem Develops For Federal Conciliators

(By Associated Press)

An overwhelming strike vote in a California military aircraft factory posed a new and pressing problem today for federal conciliators already occupied with a sailors' walkout which has tied up 26 ships on the Atlantic, Pacific and gulf coasts.

The new strike threat was directed against the Consolidated Aircraft Corporation at San Diego, Calif., holding $750,000,000 worth of orders for bombers, placed by the United States, Britain and her allies.

The International Association of Machinists (A. F. of L.) announced last night that 98.8 per cent of the membership at the plant had authorized a strike to force demands for increased wages. The union asked a blanket increase of 10 cents an hour for all employes not affected by previously agreed-upon increases in the minimum scales for beginners. And

BANKS MUST PLACE MORE ON RESERVE

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24.—(AP)—After November 1, banks which are members of the federal reserve system will be required to place a greater share of their deposits in reserve accounts, in a step designed to avert credit inflation.

The requirement varied from city to city, but in general amounted to an increase of about one-seventh in reserve requirements.

Its actual effect will be to take about $1,200,000,000 of idle bank cash out of accounts where it could be invested or lent.

The federal reserve board consulted with the treasury before issuing the order yesterday. In a joint statement, the two agencies declared they would "continue to watch the economic situation" and "fight inflation."

The approximately 6,600 banks which are members of the federal reserve system were said at present to have about $5,200,000,000 of idle money available for loans. This will be cut to about $4,000,000,000. The board asserted, however, that the banks will yet have "ample funds to meet all bank credit needs of the defense program and all legitimate requirements of their customers."

In the case of time or savings deposits, the reserve was ordered increased from five to six per cent of the deposits, in all cities.

The reserve requirement for demand or checking accounts was increased the following amounts:

New York and Chicago: from 22 3-4 to 26 per cent.

Boston, Philadelphia, Cleveland, Richmond, Atlanta, St. Louis, Minneapolis, Kansas City, Dallas and San Francisco: from 17 1-2 to 20 per cent.

Other cities: from 12 to 14 per cent.

Hundreds Flee From Lowlands To Shelter In Public Buildings

SHREVEPORT, La., Sept. 24.—(AP)—The tropical hurricane which struck south Texas and south Louisiana this morning and then headed inland, veered back into Texas at noon today without reaching Shreveport.

Although north Louisiana suffered some damage from a heavy rainstorm which was accompanied by high wind, no casualties in this area were reported and there was no serious property loss. Impairment of communication systems to some extent was reported.

The weather bureau here reported a wind velocity of 26 miles an hour but added that "the worst has passed." A rising barometer here was reported.

A high wind was reported at Lafayette but that town suffered no appreciable damage.

HOUSTON, Tex., Sept. 24.—(AP)—A tropical hurricane, sweeping inland from the Gulf of Mexico, veered unexpectedly today and smashed squarely into Houston, Texas' largest city.

The storm, which blew in from the gulf between Matagorda and Freeport with 100-mile-an-hour winds yesterday afternoon, left millions of dollars damage in its wake.

Officials estimated the rice crop alone suffered $1,700,000 damage. Damage estimates in Houston ranged up to $1,000,000, today even before the storm began to abate.

Small, flimsy buildings were blown down, others were unroofed and windows smashed in. All communica-

TWO ARMORED DIVISIONS ARE 'WAR' ENEMIES

WITH THE SECOND ARMY, Sept. 24.—(AP)—Two full armored divisions were placed on opposing sides for the first time in American maneuvers today as the Second army set up its defensive position against an attack by the numerically superior Third army.

With the start of the second half of the Louisiana war games, postponed from midnight last night to noon today, the 245,000 troops of Lieutenant-General Walter Krueger's Third army included the second armored division from Fort Benning, Ga., while the First armored unit from Fort Knox, Ky., remained with Lieutenant-General Ben Lear's 110,000 combat troops.

KING GEORGE VI HONORS CHURCHILL

LONDON, Sept. 24.—(AP)—King George VI has appointed Prime Minister Churchill to the ancient office of lord warden of the Cinque ports, giving him among other things exclusive rights to "the flotsam, jetsam and lagan" within the jurisdiction of the ports.

The non-paying office, held heretofore by 157 British princes, dukes, admirals and prime ministers in its long history, is rated a high honor.

It was said that the appointment, in succession to the late Marquess of Willingdon, was the king's own idea as a mark of his appreciation for the prime minister's services.

The Cinque ports originally were Hastings, Romney, Hythe, Dover and Sandwich—but were increased to seven by the addition of Winchelsea and Rye.

Churchill's only duty will be chairlord warden's residence, Walmer manship of the Dover board.

We will have to pay taxes on the Castle, near Dover—but there is scant possibility he ever will occupy it because it has been open to the public since 1905. Among its many rooms which attract sightseers is the one in which the Duke of Wellington died in 1852.

Churchill will be entitled to fly his own standard—blue and yellow quartered with arms of the Cinque ports—from Walmer castle.

Barons of the Cinque parts in the middle ages were charged with maintaining a fleet to keep the narrow seas free of enemy ships.

90 WILL FINISH TRAINING SOON

Three Months Of Trade-Shop Work To Be Completed October 1

Completing three months of training in trade shops here October 1, 90 youth and young men of the National Youth administration will be ready for employmen in defense plants requiring skilled labor, Walter C. Beeson, N. Y. A. interviewer, said yesterday.

The program to mold skilled workers for defense industries was begun throughout the nation July 1. The trade schools are operated by the N. Y. A. and the Office of Production management.

The N. Y. A. operates a forge shop near the old salt water swimming pool and a sheet metal shop at 901 South Grand street. The training acquired at these two shops is considered necessary to defense, Mr. Beeson said. Each N. Y. A. worker is assigned to what he is qualified to do.

At the forge shop, the youths become familiar with an electric welder, power saw, drill press, grinders, and forges. Since the shop opened nearly three months ago, the youths made nearly all of the tools and the forges.

They repaired road graders, constructed hoisting frames, built 24 diffusion stands, a dozen soiled linen racks and wagon wheels. In an adjoining room they learned to use a turning lathe and repaired automobile parts on it.

Other youths or young men who work at the sheet metal plant learn to handle the spot welder, large square shears, circle shears, form rollers, bar folders for trimming pieces of metal, and a cornice brake for fashioning cornices of various shapes.

For the past three months the N. Y. A. workers there have built trash receptacles, gutters for homes, and repaired large school lockers. The shop is equipped to fashion anything from sheet metal.

The shops, in operation day and night, employ N. Y. A. youths on three eight-hour shifts. They are in charge of a supervisor. Those in each shift receive a two-hour daily instruction from a veteran skilled worker. There are 16 in each crew of the sheet metal shop and 14 in each shift for the forge plant. The shops are operated five days a week.

After the N. Y. A. workers complete their course here, they are eligible for a job in defense industries, after they have been referred to the state employment service. Workers at the local shops who live at home receive $22 a month, while those who stay at the old country club, Island Drive, under supervision of the N. Y. A., earn $11. Room and board at the club is free. Trucks provide transportation for the workers.

"We take youths married or single between the ages of 17 and 25," Mr. Beeson said, adding that "there is an urgent need for skilled workers in the defense plants." The shops, he explained, will remain in continuous operation, turning out experienced craftsmen every three months.

Those who are interested are asked to apply to the National Youth administration office at 138 South Grand street.

LIONS CLUB HAS PERFECT RECORD

All Members Present At Tuesday Noon Meeting

The Lions club established a new record, the best in some years, when at their weekly luncheon at Hotel Frances Tuesday noon, they had a 100 per cent attendance. To achieve this result, it was necessary to bring two members securely handcuffed. They were Herbie Ryland and X. Holt, and they were brought into the banquet room by Acting Chief of Police B. L. Brantley and Sergeant J. M. Busby, being assisted by Ed Apperson and A. R. Wisenbaker.

The day's program was directed by J. W. Keene, chairman of the citizenship and patriotism committee.

Lieutenant William Barland and Sergeant M. W. Young, Company C, 21st Engineers, demonstrated the Gerrand automatic rifle.

Private Robert Neily of the Eighth bombardment, rendered several piano solos.

C. P. Brogan and Bill Ross explained the baseball game in which the Lions have challenged the Kiwanis club to play a benefit game for the USO. The game will be played at Casino park Monday at 8 p.m. A large and enthusiastic attendance is expected and an exciting contest is anticipated. Tickets for the game were printed and donated by a local printing company.

Captain W. V. Sutherlin, air base commander at Selman field, commented on the reception that the citizens of Monroe are giving the soldiers. He also complimented the local USO headquarters and expressed thanks for southern hospitality.

Guests of the club were Lion J. Stevens, San Francisco, Calif.; Chief B. L. Brantley, Sergeant J. M. Busby, Captain W. V. Sutherlin, Lieutenant William Barland, Sergeant M. W. Young and Private Robert Neily.

MONKEYS KEEP SOCIAL ORDER

Some Males Live As Bachelors When Number Of Females Insufficient

CHICAGO, Sept. 24.—(AP)—New evidence that monkeys, apes, orang-utans and other older primates often show human intelligence was offered by Dr. Clarence R. Carpenter of Pennsylvania State College in an address before the 50th anniversary celebration of the University of Chicago.

The lower primates, ranging from Lemures to Gibbons, are far from dumb, he declared, and some have a keenness of perception, understanding and agility in mentality and movement which is far beyond such traits possessed by man.

Dr. Carpenter, who has ranged the world from the United States to Puerto Rico, where he is a research associate in the School of Tropical Medicine at San Juan, and to Sumatra in the Dutch East Indies, declared these animals had an appreciation of social obligations and the care of their young.

Jungle apes and monkeys live in distinct societies and organizations, he said, but they find ways of balancing their societies for the greatest good of the greatest number. As an example, he declared, there are groups of bachelor monkeys, just as in human societies, which live alone or in club groups. However, when a deficiency of male monkeys arises in any social group the bachelors join up with females whose mates have been killed or wounded and defend a family viciously against any invader.

And, Dr. Carpenter added, if the balance between males and females is upset, all the male primates with the exception of the Gibbon will take on the responsibility of taking care of from one to 12 families, support and defend them. Gorillas like gargantua, he indicated, could take care of any situation.

COLLEGE STUDENTS TO GET DEFERMENT

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24—(AP)—Local draft boards received permission from selective service headquarters Tuesday to postpone the military service of college students in cases where immediate induction would cause "undue hardship."

A student, for example, might be permitted to complete a semester before being called. Officials said, however, that if a student knew in advance of enrollment that he was due for induction, he could expect no postponement.

The new procedure is applicable regardless of the course being pursued by the student. A previous ruling permitted boards to defer students preparing for professions or technical pursuits, such as medicine and engineering, for such time as necessary to complete their courses or win degrees, provided there was a shortage in the occupation for which they were preparing.

Council Of Social Agencies Seeks To Secure Noon Meals At Schools

Steps were taken at a special meeting called by the Council of Social agencies, at Hotel Frances, Tuesday night, toward a plan, approved by the council, for the furnishing of well-balanced hot lunches for all public school children of the parish and city. A second meeting has been tentatively arranged for the Ouachita parish high school auditorium, Tuesday at 7:30 p.m., when faculties of schools, P.-T. A. members, school teachers, public officials and parents will be asked to attend this session for the purpose of working out plans.

It was announced at the meeting that in all probability the near future will see the furnishing of school lunches, largely without cost, just as now free bus transportation and free school books are provided students.

It was pointed out that Texas and Georgia in many instances have already adopted the free lunch idea at schools. In order to make the project click, it was said that all pupils should get their noon lunches at school regardless of the financial circumstances of their parents. In this way there would be no stigma placed on those whose parents were unable to pay for lunches. On the other hand, parents able to pay could do so each month, and the fact would not be generally known and thus would not react on less privileged pupils.

It was pointed out that as little as six cents can furnish a well-balanced meal, when surplus commodities are obtained free and only a minimum of supplies are required to be purchased.

L. G. Hughes, supervisor of surplus commodities in 16 northeast Louisiana parishes, promised his cooperation with the Council of Social Agencies, and he said that the project should be greeted by parents and teachers as a community one and that it could and should be put over with enthusiasm. He said that other communities are planning along these lines and that Monroe and Ouachita parish should be able to perform in similar manner.

The meeting was presided over by A. N. Robinson, of the Council of Social agencies. Those present included besides Mr. Robinson and Mr. Hughes; Kurt Thies, local state welfare unit director; H. G. Holloway, representing surplus commodities; Mrs. W. J. Veazey, WPA supervisor; Mrs. Jennie Thornton, and Mrs. Helen Abell, secretary, Council of Social agencies, and others.

MONROE'S EARLIEST FIRE DEPARTMENT

14 WHO ABANDONED FREIGHTER RESCUED

NEW SMYRNA BEACH, Fla., Sept. 24.—(AP)—Nine crew members and five passengers who abandoned a burning freighter about eight miles off this East Florida coast city were located early today in a lifeboat, the coast guard announced.

Chief Boatswain's Mate Aubrey Harris of the coast guard said a light, motor-driven surf boat had the survivors in tow and planned to land after daybreak.

The identity of the ship, which caught fire yesterday, remained unknown but description of those aboard the lifeboat tallied closely with the nine crewmen, a married couple, two children and a male passenger who left Jacksonville, Fla., yesterday morning aboard the British motor ship Arawak.

The 115-foot, 201-ton vessel was headed for Nassau, Bahamas, its home port.

Hundreds of persons gathered along the beach to watch the flaming ship. About 10 p.m. the flames died out, leading some watchers to theorize that the ship had sunk. Officials of the British consulate declined comment on the possibility the ship was the Arawak and also withheld the Arawak's passenger and crew list.

DOWNSVILLE F. F. A. PURCHASES CATTLE

DOWNSVILLE, La., Sept. 24.—(Special)—Members of the Downsville Future Farmers of America chapter of the Downsville high school, have started a beef cattle enterprise under the supervision of their teacher, G. L. Cole.

Thirteen Hereford calves have been purchased for this project. Other than the financial gains expected from this enterprise, the project has other purposes listed: 1.—The encouragement of the raising of beef cattle. 2.—Teaching the care and proper handling of beef cattle and to create an interest in this work. 3.—To place better breeding stock in the community.

Some of these calves will remain in the community for breeding stock. Others will be placed on sale after several months of feeding. As near as possible, the boys will use home grown feed in preparing their stock for the market.

The boys who have purchased these calves are: James Arthur McDaniel, Odell Albritton, Vasco Gillum, Oren Tidwell, Huel Kennedy, Durwood Simpson, Eugene McCrary, William Bayles.

JERRY HONEYCUTT LEADS PEP SQUAD

Clever stunts and surprises are in store for football fans of Northeast Junior college says Miss Jerry Honeycutt, sophomore, who will lead the pep squad of Indianettes for the second year. She will be assisted by twirlers Jeune Hunt, Lane Shear, Laura Louise Patton, and Peggy Mirza.

The organization, comprising 60 coeds, is marching and drilling on formations. The group shows marked improvement over last year, according to Miss Ada Bess Hart and Harry Lemert, faculty directors.

Uniforms for 25 members, who joined the squad this fall, are expected any day. The uniforms were designed by Roy Henderson, instructor in art at the local college.

The Indianettes participate in exhibitions at football games, in parades, and on special occasions at Northeast JJunior college. During the homecoming celebration last year they gave a colorful demonstration of drills and nitricate formations on Brown field.

Plans are under way to send the entire squad along with the band Thursday to Kilgore, Tex., for the football game between Kilgore Junior college and Northeast Junior college.

THOUSANDS STOCK HEAVILY ON LIQUOR

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24.—(AP)—Thousands of Americans have been stocking up on liquor so heavily lately that the new higher liquor tax won't reach them for months to come.

The treasury revealed today that in August, for instance, the liquor industry withdrew 10,092,469 tax gallons of distilled spirits from warehouses. This was more than double the 4,847,967 gallons of the similar month last year. September figures may be even more startling.

The new tax law, effective October 1, increases the distilled spirits tax from $3 a gallon to $4 a gallon and levies a $1 floor tax on all liquor on hand in liquor-selling establishments on October 1. The new rates are expected to mean an increase of at least 25 cents a quart on bottle goods purchased by consumers.

Liquor production in August was 9,881,044 gallons, about 3,000,000 more than in the similar month last year, but this increase is for another reason. Many distilleries are getting ready to turn their plants over to making pure grain alcohol for various defense needs, and are piling up whisky stocks. They can get no tax advantage out of this building up of inventories.

Home-made jellies and jams were luxuries in Great Britain in the early 18th century.

11,835,139 POUNDS OF ALUMINUM GIVEN

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24.—(AP)—The nation-wide aluminum collection campaign yielded an estimated 11,835,139 pounds of scrap, defense officials announced today—a total equivalent to the amount of aluminum needed in 1,900 fighter planes or 350 four-motored bombers.

The campaign, conducted from July 21 to 29, fell below officials' expectations, however, for the O. P. M. had predicted that 15,000,000 to 20,000,000 pounds of scrap would be collected.

Experts estimated that the net yield of aluminum from the scrap would be about 7,000,000 pounds. The remainder of the weight represented other materials, primarily iron and steel, which were attached to the aluminum articles.

All but 310,000 pounds of the scrap has been allocated already to smelters having defense preference ratings.

The aluminum was sold to the smelters by the government and the funds derived went into the treasury. Officials did not disclose how much was received for the scrap.

Test For Pan-Americanism

The United States should rally immediately and strongly behind Mexico's proposal for a collective Pan-American effort to end the two-month border war between Peru and Ecuador.

This is a test of practical Pan-Americanism. We peoples of the Western Hemisphere have made a great ado about the peaceful settlement of disputes. Do we mean what we say?

The war now shaking the world is primarily about this one thing: shall 500 years of effort to find ways of peacefully settling international disputes be junked by every militarist who sees a chance to get what he wants by force?

The free peoples of the world say no. Blood is being poured out to back up that no. But in the meantime, since July 5, bloody fighting along the Peru-Ecuador border has been breaking out every week or so because the machinery for adjustment of the dispute has not functioned.

It is good to see Mexico take the lead in this matter by calling for joint action by all the American nations. It will not be possible to suggest now that the United States is trying to bully-rag any small American nations into any course. The United States can and should join now with Mexico, Argentina and Brazil in a dynamic effort to bring reason and good sense to bear on the Peru-Ecuador situation.

The United States has only the friendliest feeling toward both countries and both peoples. It is not prejudging the case, and it will not be greatly influenced by floods of hysterical propaganda which have come from the south. It is not a question of who is right. It is a question of what means shall be adopted to show who is right.

In a world which has relapsed into the law of the jungle in international affairs, the American nations must keep one area of the world under the law of reason and civilization; we have a duty to keep a torch of sanity alight in a world which has progressively darkened for 10 weary years.

The United States wants to exert no Colossus-pressure on two small South American nations. But it should and must join emphatically with the other Pan-American countries which are pledged to peace to exert a united pressure on both countries, first, to establish a temporary boundary and stop the fighting, and second, to set in motion arbitration or other machinery for the permanent healing of this sore spot on the body of an otherwise healthy Western Hemisphere.

Manhattan
By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—John Mulholland is as agile a trickster as ever crawled into a sugarbowl and pulled out a rabbit. . . . His activities in legerdemain have included not only the business of baffling pop-eyed onlookers but extended even to the printed page. Magician Mulholland is an editor. He has a magazine called the Sphinx, devoted to the news and views of the profession.

Frequently he receives "subscriptions" from customers, saying: "Kindly send me the Sphinx for one year. My check for $2.50 is enclosed."

Only the check isn't there. It's a gag that sometimes works, for names have been known to add names to their mailing lists hoping to collect later on.

The other day, however, Mulholland received a postcard from a razor who said his check was "enclosed" and would the magazine be forthcoming?

"Yes indeed," Mulholland wrote back—on a post card. "Enclosed please find first copy."

This seems to be an old vaudeville gag, similar to that of the patron who wrote to a razor manufacturer in the early days: "Dear sir, please find my enclosed check for $5 for which you are to send me one of your Shave-Clean razors. PS. I forgot to enclose the check. It probably won't mean a little matter to you."

The manufacturer replied, "My Dear Sir, we are delighted to receive your order and you are hereby notified that the Shave-Clean razor is included in this package. PS. We forgot to include the razor, but no doubt a man of your type won't miss it after all."

There is no basis before a recitation of this yarn actually to go. But there can be no doubt that people like to receive their gifts after year. Mulholland has received "boon" and a good many "subscriptions" in which the "check" never has found its way.

Reporting on night club talent, this column noted that the [illegible] been from "Hello Sucker" to "God Bless America." That was an understatement. In recent weeks the [illegible] rent to the new floor shows have gone in for production with a 40-piece band. It is almost impossible to go into a supperclub without hearing a chorus of the Star Spangled Banner and the chorus girls [illegible] will be found out as Uncle Sam uniforms.

Harry Richman has a song that well illustrates this trend toward [illegible] patriotism. The song goes something like this: "I'm for Uncle Sam and no other dame. My heart belongs to Uncle Sam. He gets around. He was [illegible] a front on the Mississippi. He was [illegible] the town was over on the shore before the pilgrims landed. He was harvesting the wheat and oats and notes of cheer to the oppressed." . . . It's a swell song that. The response to this number, wherever I hear it, has been unfailingly great.

. . . Alice's new book will be published in three volumes when [illegible]. Herbert Asbury recalls, is the author of "Asbury's Asides" which began the current trend toward [illegible] in modern novels.

Short True Story: For charity's sake, he must be nameless here, but he once was a well-known leading man. After several penniless years, he turned author and finally succeeded in selling a scenario to a major studio for a small price and a writing contract. It might have been a turning point—but his pride was his undoing. He bragged about the amount paid for his story, multiplying the price by five to make a good impression. And he mis-represented his $150-a-week salary as $500. His ex-wife heard about it, sued for bigger alimony—and collected. His parents, previously able to support themselves, "moved in," uninvited and unannounced. And the writer, floundering in financial woes, began to ask the studio for salary advances. The other day, after six months work, his first option came up. You guessed it—his disgusted bosses did not renew his contract.

Our Children
By ANGELO PATRI

INEPT EDUCATION WASTES YOUTH

Nobody knows better than I how long and hard a teacher's day can be, but I know also by experience how much shorter and easier it can be made by going just a bit farther along the road to meet the troublesome child, extending still farther a friendly hand already stretched more than half way. By sufferings the evils ignorant and helpless children put upon him the teacher can win to the open road of sympathy and understanding on which they can travel happily and successfully together.

Keeping one's sympathy uppermost, waiting to understand, holding back the impatient word and hasty action will help more than the harsh word or the impartial administration of the law. I have not found that keeping the letter of the law and ignoring the spirit of it is at all helpful with children who, by circumstances or condition, are outside the law. What is needed is a basis of understanding between teacher and taught and an opportunity for occupation attractive to the child and spiritually heartening.

Nobody in his right mind would insist that no changes had taken place in American life and ways these last twenty-five years and yet in many a school in this country the lessons, the routines, the standards, are still those of the Civil war period. Some of the buildings and their accommodations and equipment are those used at that time, down to the paint.

How can a boy or girl of today be satisfied to attend such a bygone school with any feeling of joy, any desire for what it offers? Yet many fine boys and girls go to such schools and do their best to get what they need from them.

The good children, good in character and strong in intelligence, manage to get along despite the school's deficiencies, but those who are poor in spirit, poor in ability, get little. They fall out and are soon listed as delinquents.

In many instances it is the good citizens of the community who were delinquent in their duty to these children and so contributed to their failure. Had they kept their educational plants up to modern standards as they kept their industrial plants we should have had fewer failures among the young people.

We cannot afford the waste of youth that inept education permits. We cannot afford to let the weak and the needy children fall out to add themselves to the growing army of the unfit. We cannot afford to cultivate delinquent, by ignoring the needs of healthy boys and girls who come, or are sent, to public schools for an education that will fit them for life's work. Every school failure is a national loss.

There is no sense in resting our case on the law. We cannot sit back and say, 'We have done all that is necessary. If he cannot take what we offer as the rest of the children do, he can go to the institution." It is our duty to prevent his going to an institution, and we can actually do so by setting the school to meet the child more than halfway. Indeed, we must go all the way if it is necessary to save the child.

The child's best friend, after his mother, is his understanding teacher. The teacher leads the educational forces. Not the trustee, not the principal, not the superintendent but the classroom teacher is the force that creates the right attitudes, the right desires, the right aims in the child.

Find the good teacher, pay him anything he asks because his services to his country, to his country's children and to you are beyond price. It is he and he alone who knows how to meet the wavering wandering child half way, and more, to take him over the one right road for him.

What is being done in your town for the next generation? What is being done to discover and reward the good teacher?

WASHINGTON—It's a strange town: Associate Justice William O. Douglas, of the supreme court, is enduring his noisiest autumn. Justice Douglas has his home far out where Eastern and Georgia avenues join. Next door is a huge vacant lot where a tabernacle is going up, fronted by the announcement that for some weeks to come a revival meeting will hold forth there. A few hundred feet away, on another brace of ordinarily empty acres, is a jangling little carnival, complete from dismally rhythmic merry-go-round to whistling peanut stand. Less than a year ago a week-end guest of the justice's home commented "It's so quiet out there I don't see how he sleeps."

Captain James Roosevelt of the United States marines has moved into the federal trade commission with his new boss, Colonel William J. "Wild Bill" Donovan, coordinator of the intelligence services. Captain Roosevelt's appearance had nothing to do with it but the corridor that houses the new offices has become one of the most exclusive in the city. Armed guards patrol it throughout the day, and for all I know through the night. You can't get by without a pass.

It wouldn't be worth mentioning except that the persons most inconvenienced by the new set-up are the officials and employes of the federal trade commission. They can't even walk their own halls without being challenged and forced to show their credentials.

Luis Marin Munoz, president of the Puerto Rican senate, one of the highest officials of that island, arrived in town the other day. He was officially met at the national airport by Major General Edwin M. "Pa" Watson, the president's general military aide. The general's Spanish was a little rusty but his French being perfect, he addressed Senor Marin Munoz in that language. The amenities flowed back and forth. The general explained that he was to take the senor immediately to the president. But, he added, the president's Spanish, like his own, was not quite up to his French. Perhaps it would be much smoother if the senor would converse with the president in French.

"Whaat's the matter" said Senor Marin Munoz in faultless American-cahnese. "Can't he speak English?"

Even a little glance at the record would have disclosed that Senor Marin Munoz was a graduate of Georgetown university and for many years a resident of Washington.

A few months ago the federal bureau of investigation was rubbing its hands in glee at the way the fingerprints were rolling in. Now the bureau is beating its breast. The deluge of fingerprints, resulting from such things as alien registration and defense plant fingerprinting, has caused a staggering shortage of fingerprint classifier. The dearth has become so acute that the present staff can't even scan the 2,500 fingerprints that come in daily are months behind on the 25,000,000 already in the files.

The shortage is just another indication of what is happening among the job-hunters. Getting to be a classier isn't hard. It only requires a high school education; a letter to FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover; a willingness to accept $1,260 a year while learning and $1,440 a year after six months; and that the applicant be between 18 and 35. Still, only a couple of applicants a day come in, and the bureau could use a thousand or so.

Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson gets his only relaxation when he and Mrs. Stimson, on week-ends, fly in the secretary's special plane to their estate at Huntington, Long Island. In the army, and strictly behind the secretary's back, the boys call it the "egg run" because invariably the secretary rands his own henhouses and brings back to Washington at least a week's supply of fresh eggs.

BUILDING INSPECTOR GIVES TWO PERMITS

Issuance of two building permits was announced Wednesday by Sam H. Awl, city building inspector. A permit was given Alfred Gallaron to construct a one-story, frame dwelling on the west side of Wilson street between Reed and Parker streets. The owner will do the work, with the building costing $800.

Another permit was given J. L. Warren for construction of a one-story, frame building at 2400 Louisville avenue. The building, which will be used for tourist rooms, will contain three rooms and a shower. Day labor will be used in the construction, with the building costing $500.

BICYCLE STOLEN

Ben Jenkins, negro, living at 709 Easton avenue, reported to police the theft of his bicycle from his residence some time Tuesday night. The bicycle, Jenkins said, was a Liberty, painted red and brown.

FUNNY BUSINESS

15 Years Ago

September 24, 1926

Treusdale and Slator announced today that they will construct a two-story, instead of one-story, building on their site, 130 South Grand street. When the old building was razed a week ago, a one-story building was planned. Instead a structure 20 by 80 feet, the ground floor to be occupied by Treusdale and Slator, and the upper floors devoted to offices, will be constructed. The total cost will be about $15,000. This is regarded as another step in rebuilding the older part of Monroe. The new building will be of tapestry brick and will blend architecturally with the building immediately to the north now being constructed by S. J. Rivoire.

One of the larger and important deals of the week was the sale of the home in Bastrop of P. F. Montgomery on Cypress street, that city, to the Arkansas and Louisiana-Missouri Pacific Railway for a depot site. The home, one of the older residences of the city, was built over 20 years ago and is a large two-story frame building. The lot fronts 150 feet by 388 feet deep and the consideration was $11,000. Some time ago, the Bastrop A. and L. M. station was destroyed by fire and a temporary building has since been in use.

FOR THE LOVE OF PAM
By VIVIEN GREY

Chapter Seven

Tragedy For Pam

FREDA started. It was the first time she had been forced to think of Pam's and Jerry's evident attraction for each other as something permanent; something growing from roots that would give it a lasting quality. She looked at Pam. There was something about the girl. . . .

She looked down at her left hand. Jerry's diamond was gleaming there. It gave her a sense of security. Nothing could actually happen as long as she had that.

"Dance, Freda?" It was Jerry standing beside her, smiling.

"I'd love to."

"Who are you making eyes at tonight?" Jerry asked as they moved smoothly away.

Freda laughed. "Anyhow, you'll admit I'm efficient! Why waste time putting into words things you can do with your eyes? Besides, what you don't say, you never have to be sorry for."

"If that's the way you feel about it, I've noticed that native lad from the beach hanging around here. Why don't you pick on men that might have a chance? You're not being fair. It isn't nice of you."

"Jerry, you sound exactly like a maiden aunt!" she answered, still laughing at him.

Jerry was grateful to a cut-in who claimed her then. Looking around, he glimpsed Pam and made his way to her. He led her to a table at the side of the dance floor.

"Pam, you're lovely," he said, as he sat down opposite her and looked at her. "What would your answer be if I told you I loved you?" He waited for a moment for her reply, then thought he saw it in her eyes, though she made no audible rejoinder. "I'm telling you, Pam, I love you. I'll love you forever and ever. I'll love you all my life, little island flower."

Across the room he saw Freda, who was wearing his diamond. He knew he should not have spoken so to Pam, at least not until that diamond was reclaimed. Then Edmund Antoine asked Pam to dance.

Jerry watched them move away, scarcely conscious of the girl who had dropped into a chair at his table, a girl from Virginia. He remembered her. He'd met her at several smart places. She spoke in broken little phrases and Jerry recalled having kissed her one evening during a foolishly romantic interval in the shadows of a Spanish lime tree. She had seemed lovely then, but now there was something annoying about her. She followed Jerry's eyes with a sort of helpless defeat in her own. She said finally in her fragile little voice:

"I understand. I've seen it myself just that way. A man comes up in your life like the moon in the sky, and he's just there—and what are you going to do about it? She's like that with you."

But Jerry was staring out at the dancers.

"Let's dance," the girl said. She was that kind. A man never really minded dancing with her, but he never asked her.

Good Time

AND on the dance floor Antoine had kept Pam only a little while. A cut-in had taken her, and then another. It was new to Pam and grand fun. She looked up happily when Algar Bruce claimed her.

"Hello, pretty!" he said.

"Hello, yourself!"

"So you know the answers. Come on out under the Royal Poinciana tree. They'll sound so much sweeter out there."

"Oh, no! Wait! I want to hear this!" So Pam and Algar found chairs at an unoccupied table.

The orchestra had swung into a melody that cascaded and rippled through the room. Lenore Winthrope walked into a little circle of light that had been cleared on the dance floor.

She was breathtakingly lovely. All in white, Pam reflected that few girls were naturally equipped to wear white so dramatically. Her dark hair was drawn back from her oval face and fell in soft curls on her shoulders. Her hands clasped a large bunch of violets. Pam recognized them. The violets she had given Lenore's mother.

Antoine, directing his boys, brought the music to a swelling crescendo. The winds and brasses swept the melody clear and high. The strings echoed it softly, mutedly. A dramatic pause. Then Antoine's fingers in that striking chromatic so characteristic of him. And Lenore started to sing. Her voice was a low, compelling harmony, accompanied only by the mellow wood winds, sobbing softly about a man she'd found and lost again.

As Lenore stopped singing Pam led the applause. She clapped madly, her hands high in the air.

"But there were tears in her eyes! Real tears. That girl's got what it takes to put a song over," Pam heard a girl near her say.

Real tears in Lenore's eyes? Then that's why they had sparkled so. But why? Why? Pam wondered. She looked then to where especially loud applause was coming from, and saw a native Key West-er—she could tell him by his dark, Cuban cast—clapping as wildly as she had, but there was something warm and eager in his eyes as he looked at Lenore.

The young man was sitting on the window sill, his feet outside. He had evidently come from outside to listen.

Jerry, in another part of the room, had seen the young man too, and recognized him, with distinct displeasure, as the young man he had seen that afternoon he'd been on the beach with Freda.

Then Jerry's eyes caught Pam and he went to her.

"Oh, Jerry, she sings beautifully! Lenore's wonderful!"

"Yes, and I saw you leading the applause, angel. That was sweet of you, considering." He dropped down beside her.

"And she's so beautiful to look at, too," Pam said.

"Your violets were the touch that made that, darling. It took some persuasion to get Mother to let her have them for tonight. You're a sweet little thing, Pam—doing all that work for Mother. She adores you for it."

"You're such a lovely family, Jerry." The words were spoken wistfully, for in that moment Pam seemed to miss more than ever having no family of her own.

There were a thousand things that came to Jerry's mind then, a thousand eager ways to ask her to be one of that family. But Antoine had crashed into a swinging melody; dancers were moving about on the floor. A young man claimed Pam. And Jerry, remembering the ring on Freda's finger, stayed his words and let her go.

Almost immediately Algar Bruce was beside her again, cutting in.

"I want that dance I was cheated out of, beautiful," he said easily. "And," as they whirled away together, "has anyone told you you're the most beautiful girl here?"

"No, I think everyone here is honest," Pam laughed.

"They can't be. They're a bunch of meanies, or they'd have told you long ago. Everybody here is raving about some little Conch gal that's suposed to be tops. They say she mows 'em down like no-body's business! I haven't seen her yet, and I don't want to. I've seen you!"

The Bet

"CONCH girl?" Pam caught only one word. She was Conch. She'd never been anything but proud of it. It meant that she had been born on the island. She was native to its beauty. But there had been something in the way Algar said it that caught her attention.

"Yes, Conch, beautiful. But let's not talk about her. Let's talk about you. You're the real thing. You're as real and wholesome as a bottle of certified milk. And so much more intriguing!"

"But this Conch girl—" Pam started to say.

"Oh, haven't you heard? Some local beauty that Jerry Winthrope bet he could date, and the rest of his crowd bet he couldn't. Well, he did. This supper tonight is the pay-off. Antoine was the one who bet against Jerry. So he gave the supper, and Jerry has the girl here somewhere. I haven't seen her yet. But the girl can't mean anything to Jerry. He's engaged to Freda Barrington."

Pam missed a step.

"Engaged? Engaged to Freda Barrington?"

"Sure! Haven't you seen that diamond she's wearing? Big as a house. That's the engagement ring Jerry gave her."

"Jerry Winthrope engaged?" The words came slowly from Pam.

"Sure. Everybody knows that."

"And he bet"—it seemed to Pam it was some other girl's voice see heard asking the question—"he bet about that Conch girl?" She had almost said "about me."

"Sure. You're not telling me you didn't know that, beautiful?" Algar was too engrossed in his own thoughts to notice that some of the brightness had faded from his partner's eyes. "It's some girl who's never noticed any of the winter boys before. She's supposed to be here around here in books, and of that. And Jerry, with his usual good luck—"

"I'm tired," Pam interrupted. "Let's stop." Suddenly she didn't want to hear any more. She wanted Algar to stop talking about Jerry and the bet. But Algar, with a sort of affable determination, continued:

"Yeah! Jerry always does play in luck and it didn't run out this time. He dated the girl for lunch or something and the report was on Antoine. So here's supper, beautiful—you and I dateme!"

Pam stopped dancing.

"Excuse me!" she said to astonished Algar's words had come like a blow that made the room turn in revolutions of her life.

Pam went out into the room where the orchestra was already beginning a new number. Across, just beyond a little eddy of dancers, Jerry's handsome face stood out. It seemed to Pam there was nobody else in the room. Then she was aware of the girl he was talking to. Freda Barrington. Sleek, sophisticated Freda.

KIWANIS CLUB TO MEET IN LOGTOWN

Kiwanis club members and their wives will participate in a fellowship luncheon, served barbecue style, at the Logtown school house, Wednesday night with the Logtown Home demonstration club as sponsor. Should the weather be bad the meal will be served in the handsome gymnasium of the school.

In times past the Logtown meetings have been exceptional for the amount of interest shown and for the superior subject matter offered.

Long lines of barbecued meats and all the usual side dishes, and cold drink will be served by the feminine hosts who consider affairs like this as outstanding events of the year.

Officers of the Kiwanis club urged all members to make special effort to attend and to bring their wives or other lady friends.

Logtown is easily reached and is 12 [illegible] south of Monroe, being situated on the Columbia gravel highway about midway of that distance east of [illegible].

SMOKERS ASSURED OF CIGARET PAPER

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24.—(AP)—Smokers got the cheerful assurance from the commerce department today that the war and priorities won't deprive them of cigaret paper.

Before the war, most cigaret paper was imported from France or came out of occupied Italy. Since then, American industry has learned to make the paper out of flax straw, available from domestic farms.

Soon, the department says, so much of the new paper will be made that enough will be available not only for American needs but for sale to other countries.

More than 17,000 persons are now engaged in Canada's aircraft industry.

MANY EAGERLY SEEK TRYOUTS

Little Theater Will Continue Casting Tests At Workshop Here

More than a score of ne.. players answered the call of the Monroe Little theater for tryouts at the Little Theater workshop, 307 North Second treet, Tuesday evening and Director Lorenzo Smith announced Wednesday that casting tests would be continued at the workshop at 8 o'clock in the evening on Wednesday and Thursday. The production in sight is Fred Ballard's riotous new comedy, "Ladies of the Jury," which has recently been released for amateur production. There are parts for 12 men and 10 women, and it is particularly desired that tests be made for the middle-aged group which predominate in the characters for this play. Full information can be obtained from Lorenzo Smith.

Tom Davenport, president of the Little Theater, has particularly stressed the importance of members participating in the activities of the group. "The production of a successful play," he stated, "is a most complicated endeavor. For every actor there must be at least two other persons active backstage or in various capacities. Our members who participate in production activities such as set construction, stage properties, make-up problems, lighting effects and program distribution are quite as busy as the players and a large share of responsibility rests with these voluntary workers.

"We are happy to have a Little Theater workshop in which to centralize our efforts and we are hoping that many of our members will report there during the next few evenings and enroll in the interesting work which will surely afford them much pleasure during the 1941-42 season."

The sale of season tickets has been placed in the hands of R. N. Slator, Joe Kern, Eleanor Tatum, James Sparks, Louis Turner, H. H. Brinsmade, Roy Henderson, Lucyle Godwin, Mrs. W. M. Harper, Mrs. Olan H. Black, Dorothy Calvert, and Mrs. Milling Bernstein. Past patrons and prospective new members are urged to contact members of this committee and arrange for immediate delivery of season tickets. Membership for the season, during which six plays will be presented, is in the sum of two dollars and includes all privileges of the organization.

NUMBER KILLED IN CLASH IN MEXICO

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 24.—(AP)—From four to 14 persons were declared today to have been killed in a clash of Mexican troops and aggrieved munitions workers who sought a mass interview with President Manuel Avila Camacho.

Avila Camacho, former army general, expressed regret at the incident which caused gunfire yesterday on the avenue Del Castillo in fashionable Chapultepec heights, and ordered an immediate investigation.

An authorized source said four workers were killed and 16 wounded. Other reports placed the toll as high as 14 dead and dozens wounded. Among the dead was listed Guillermo Rojas, secretary-general of the workers' syndicate.

Munitions workers had been demanding removal of General Luis Bobadilla Camberos, director of the war plants, and paraded toward the president's home to emphasize charges that:

1—The director had conspired with labor leaders who had been ousted by their own union, to give the impression that the workers were Communists.

2—He had injured the quality of munitions production by farming out contracts to incompetents.

3—The ousted union leaders had attacked the president's international policies which include cooperation in hemispheric defense and betterment of relations with the United States in the union publication.

The official account said 200 workers made the march. Others asserted that more than 1,000 participated.

Spectators said soldiers guarding the president's house blocked the path, that the workers attempted to disarm them and the troops then fired. Rojas was said to have been shot in an attempt to disarm Colonel Maximano Ochoa, commander of the guard.

BRAKEMAN LOSES ARM IN ACCIDENT

L. H. Davis, 24, of Bastrop, received such serious injuries when acting as student brakeman on a Missouri Pacific freight train near Kelly Tuesday night, that it was necessary to amputate the right arm above the elbow, when he was removed to St. Francis sanitarium.

Davis, who is son of a Missouri Pacific engineer, was making his first trip when the accident occurred. In endeavoring to catch hold of a handle bar he slipped and fell in such a manner that the right arm was badly ground by wheels of the train.

He was hastily removed to the St. Francis sanitarium where after the operation he was said to be resting well on Wednesday noon.

Private flying experienced a remarkable growth in the United States during the last year. On January 1, 1941, 67,113 individual held pilot certificates against 37,264 a year ago—a gain of 101.9 per cent.

SPOKANE, Wash., Sept. 24.—Uncle Sam is shelling out 5,000,000 of his national defense dollars to build a wayside "service station" for army plane traffic between the United States and Alaska. The new air base—one of the Pacific coast's biggest—is Geiger field, at Spokane, headquarters for the army's Second air force. It is less than 1,000 miles from Juneau via the sheltered inland route. Flying fortresses based here are only four hours from San Francisco, eight from Sitka or Kodiak, Alaska, and eleven from Siberia.

When Geiger field is finished it will have a total garrison of 6,000 officers and men, housed and served in 107 buildings. There will be 37 barracks for bachelor officers and men. Married personnel will live in the four-room homes of a nearby $700,000 housing project.

Typical of the 200 airports the WPA is constructing or improving, Geiger field was dreamed up back in 1938 as a "stepping port for Spokane, center of northwest aviation.

Located in a "natural citadel of defense" between the Rockies and the coastal Cascades, some 250 miles from the Pacific the field won quick favor with the war department and was rated "type four," the highest by the CAA.

In less than a year, 1,280 acres of once-rich farming, sage and grazed land have been leveled, paved and lined up with barracks, mess halls, bomb magazines and other operations structures. Bombers, B-18's and B-25's, are already using its broad runways and spacious hangar.

Twenty miles of runways will criss-cross the field when completed, to permit multiple landings of all types of planes—including the B-19 from any direction. Each runway will be a mile or more long, and wide as a football field, with a 150-foot paved center strip, flanked by 75-foot oil and 50-foot gravel boulder.

Landing and instrument flight, are unhampered for tallest structure in a two-mile radius is the field's own radio tower, located some distance away.

A single hangar, just completed, will provide storage space for most of the 60-odd planes. 50 per cent bombers, being based at Geiger, as well as a machine shop and field office.

Bombing crews based at Geiger will make night reconnaissance flights to the coast and back and practice their aim on a nearby range with 100-pound sand-filled duds.

The base was named, over protests of Spokane citizens, for Major Harold Geiger, a New Jersey aviator killed in a 1927 plane crash. Local residents, who originally called it Sunset field, wanted it named for a northwest man, but found they had no dead army hero to fill the bill.

Construction of the air base rivals any records set on defense jobs across the nation, but has had its share of trouble as well. There was the lawsuit brought by a turkey farm owner who feared the roar of the bombers would scare his birds to death, for instance.

BIRTHS

Mr. and Mrs. O. L. Bates, White's Ferry road, are parents of a daughter, Barbara Ann, born at the residence, September 17.

Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Hargraves of the Sterlington road are parents of a son born in Mosely's clinic on Sunday.

THREE REACH WRECKAGE OF ARMY BOMBER

Officers, From Camp, Direct Work Of Bringing Out Six Bodies

TACOMA, Wash., Sept. 24.—(AP)—From a base camp near the little Olympic peninsula settlement of Quilcene army air corps officers today directed the difficult work of bringing the remains of six airmen from the rocky wilderness where their bomber crashed and exploded high on Mount Constance two weeks ago.

Three veteran forest rangers reached the bomber wreckage late yesterday and reported by field radio that the six men apparently were killed instantly.

Major W. A. Schulgen, McChord field operations officer in charge of the rescue detachment, said the bodies and salvageable portions of the wreckage probably could not be brought out before tomorrow.

To reach the isolated crash spot, a few hundred feet down from the top of the craggy 7,700-foot peak in the Olympics, the three rangers had to climb with ropes along dangerous rocky cliffs.

Two others turned back within a mile of the wreckage to seek a route by which the rescue parties and their pack mules would be able to get close to the scene.

The five experienced woodsmen and mountaineers took six hours to get up the eight miles of tortuous trail. Then, from the trail they had to strike out over the forbidding rocky heights.

They were guided by smoke flares dropped from army planes.

The three who reached the wrecked plane identified it definitely by serial numbers on the tail assembly, the only part of the eight-year-old twin-motored bomber that remained intact. It had skidded several hundred feet down a sheer rock wall into a ravine. Other parts of the shattered ship lay along the rocky slope.

A pack train of 10 mules started up the mountain yesterday to carry out the bodies.

Victims of the crash which occurred before dawn on September 9, while on a flight from eastern Washington, were:

Second Lieutenant Edward T. Valorz, 28, Chicago, the pilot; Second Lieutenant John W. Winship, 25, Riverside, Calif., co-pilot; Staff Sergeant Robert D. Dexter, 23, Victorville, Calif.; Sergeant James W. Page, 20, Seagoville, Tex.; Jack J. Hupert, 22, Milwaukee, Wis., and Milford Knight, St. Louis.

DUKE OF WINDSOR STILL ENERGETIC

MIAMI, Fla., Sept. 24.—(AP)—The Duke of Windsor proved at the outset of his six-week vacation trip to the United States and Canada that he is just as energetic as the Prince of Wales who used to dash around the world selling British good will.

Edward, governor of the Bahamas, flew here from Nassau with his duchess yesterday and soon had legweary aides puffing to keep up with him.

Within 12 hours of his arrival the former king had:

Emerged smiling and happy from a rousing reception at the airport.

Paid a visit to Arthur Davis of Pittsburgh aboard the latter's yacht.

Lunched at his hotel with friends.

Sped to suburban Coral Gables to inspect 300 R. A. F. cadets and 100 Americans studying navigation at the University of Miami.

Spent another hour and a half at the Pan-American airways seaplane base.

Entertained airline officials at a cocktail party.

Dined with members of his party at a restaurant.

The duke and duchess will reach Washington tomorrow morning and will be guests of President Roosevelt for an informal White House luncheon.

From Washington they will travel by train to the duke's ranch near Calgary, Canada.

RUSSIA REPLIES TO PROTEST BY JAPAN

TOKYO, Sept. 24.—(AP)—Soviet Russia has replied to Japan's protest against mines drifting into the Sea of Japan, apparently from Vladivostok fields, Koh Ishii, government spokesman, said today, but the nature of the answer was not disclosed.

Ishii said talks between the two nations over the issue still were going on.

He said trade with Russia was continuing normally although the Russian-Japanese commercial treaty still was unratified.

In another field, Ishii announced that the Japanese government was negotiating for another loan from Thai bankers.

The first loan, announced August 1, was for 10,000,000 bahts (nominally $3,600,000) to finance Japanese purchases in Thailand.

Ishii also announced cancellation of nine celebrations planned for Saturday by Seigo Nakano's extreme nationalist followers and a rally planned by the East Asia development corporation to mark the first anniversary of Japan's adherence to the Rome-Berlin axis.

"We want to celebrate this event with dignity so we do not want meetings everywhere," the spokesman said.

The only celebration will be a rally sponsored by the Tokyo municipal authorities and the Imperial Rule Assistance Association.

NOVA SURE HE'LL BEAT LOUIS OUT OF TITLE BELT

LOU BELITTLES RING CHAMP'S PUNCH POWER

Big Challenger In Fine Shape For Go With Titlist Monday

By Sid Feder

POMPTON LAKES, N. J., Sept. 24.—(AP)—Lou Nova tossed a final right-hand shot at Sparring Partner Johnny Aichers as the gong sounded, then leaned over the ropes and remarked, "This guy's a lot tougher than Louis."

Which just goes to show you how Louie the Yogi's fistic family, all the way from the chief in the kitchen, right up to and including the blond Californian, himself, feel about the heavyweight champion who has been rated by many the greatest fighter of all time.

There is nothing but contempt for the Joe Louis punching power, his durability and even his heart in this lakeside camp of the hero of the cosmic punch who has a date with the Bomber Monday night in the Polo Grounds ring in New York. Up here, the No. 1 boy is just another guy named Joe.

"What is it about Louis that makes you fellows call him a superman?" Nova pooh-poohed in between huddles with his dynamic stance and his hogi magic. "Sure, he has been knocking over fellows for more than five years, and he's a pretty fair puncher. But do I look like one of those has-beens or never-wases that he's grown fat on?"

You had to acknowledge the big fellow might have something there. He is bothered by a mild case of incompatibility of the feet and he does some things that look amateurish in action. Yet no one Louis has met up to now was as powerful and as loaded with confidence and what the swanky set on Jacobs Beach call ticker. Against 190-pounders in sparring sessions, he looks like a giant and he manhandles them dizzy at close quarters, tossing them around with no more trouble than you'd have buttoning your vest.

Although there are any number of experts who feel that Lou will be lucky to escape alive Monday night, and that whoever thought up this match should be arrested, the gambling guys are impressed with Nova's condition and confidence. They've knocked the odds down to 1 to 2 1-2 in Louis' favor, which is the narrowest price on the Bomber in recent years, and still Nova figures that's an out-and-out steal.

"I'm the best heavyweight in the world right now," he insisted as he tore a half dozen dynamic stances, a little thing he picked up which consists of leaping forward, landing with knees slightly bent and giving off a cross between a roar and the sound you'd expect to hear from the pork section of the barnyard. Even if you don't believe him, getting a load of this is worth the price of admission.

REBELS, VOLS RENEW SERIES

Third Game Finds Nashville Leading By Two Contests

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Sept. 24.—(AP)—The Dallas Rebs came to Nashville Tuesday night with two chips on their shoulders and a lot of good resolutions as they set themselves for the third game of the Dixie Series with the Vols Wednesday night.

The grudges they carried were two defeats—both by scores of 6-1—that the Vols handed the Texas League representative in Dallas. The resolutions narrowed down to this—no more pushing around from Nashville; we're out to win.

Manager Wally Dashiell of the Rebs told newspaper writers the Dallas club "suffered a letdown" after the playoffs in their own league.

"We're a better ball club than we looked in Dallas in the first two games," he said. "We'll bounce back, and when we do we're gonna win some ball games here."

"Nashville has more power than we have," he continued, "but I think we are faster and a little better defensively."

Manager Larry Gilbert, the sly little skipper of the Vols, said very little except that Russ Meers, his ace left-hander, will work Wednesday night Dashiell named Gordon Maltzberger to face the Southern Association team.

CARDS BOBBLE CHANCE TO CUT DODGERS' LEAD

Split In Twin Bill With Pirates Leaves Standings Unchanged

By Duke Moran

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 24.—(AP)—The St. Louis Cardinals' chances for the National League pennant went tottering into the limbo of forlorn hopes Tuesday as they divided a double header with the Pittsburgh Pirates.

The Buccaneers have been cousins for the Cards all season, but they disowned the relationship by capturing a 4-0 shutout in the first game and St. Louis' furious 9-0 conquest in the nightcap was not enough to overtake the damage.

The split left St. Louis still a game and a half behind the Brooklyn Dodgers, who were idle Tuesday, but it made a drastic change in their outlook for the future.

Each team has four games left and even if the Cardinals win all of theirs and Brooklyn is beaten once, the Dodgers still would bag the pennant by half a game. But while St. Louis is tackling the tough Pirates and Chicago Cubs twice each, the Dodgers will be partying with the seventh-place Boston Braves and the last-place Phillies.

Pittsburgh's victory in the first game was at the expense of Mort Cooper, the Cardinals' expert young right-hander. The Pirates pelted him off the hill with three runs in the first inning and then coasted home on the strong southpaw slants of Ken Heintzelman.

Shortstop Martin Marion made a bad throw on Eddie Stewart, the Pirates' leadoff man in the first inning to sound the tenor of the game. It was the first of three errors for him and the beginning of a nightmare of five St. Louis misplays.

Stewart raced to third on Elbie Fletcher's double off the right field wall and both scored on Vince DiMaggio's sharp single to left. DiMaggio reached second on the futile throw to the plate and a moment later scored on a single by Debs Garms.

At this point Cooper turned the stage over to Clyde Shoun, who pitched his heart out in a losing cause until removed for a pinch-hitter in the eighth.

The Pirates' other run in the fifth was purely a gift. Stewart again led off and was safe as Shoun fumbled his bunt. Fletcher also bunted and forced Stewart, then took second on a fly by Gustine. DiMaggio was purposely passed and Bob Elliott, pinch-hitting for Garms, singled off First Baseman Johnny Hopp's glove to load the bases. Then Marion fumbled Stu Martin's grounder to let in the run.

The setback apparently shocked St. Louis into action in the second game and the Pirates returned to their familiar role as the stooges who had lost 14 out of 18 to the Cards before today.

Lefty Max Lanier pitched steady if not spectacular eight-hit ball, choking off repeated Pittsburgh threats, and the Pirates bolstered the Cards' eight-hit attack with four errors.

Two of the St. Louis hits were home runs and each came with men on base. Rookie Stan Musial hit one with one on in the fifth and Estel Crabtree connected for another with two on in the seventh. But the game already had been won and the homers were hardly more than anticlimaxes.

Yankees Will Boast Best Infield In World Series

Bombers' Keystone Combine Tops Those Of Either St. Louis Or Brooklyn

By Judson Bailey

NEW YORK, Sept. 24.—(AP)—The biggest advantage the New York Yankees will have as they roll into the World Series next week will be their infield.

There isn't a keystone combination in baseball that compares with Second Baseman Joe Gordon and Shortstop Phil Rizzuto of the American league champions.

Both the Brooklyn Dodgers and St. Louis Cardinals have good, workmanlike inner patrols. The Dodgers have a strong right side, with this year's best first baseman, Dolph Camilli, and a fine second baseman, Billy Herman. The Cards are strongest at second, Frank Crespi, and at third, Jim Brown.

But neither of the National league rivals can match the balance and smoothness of the Yankees.

This is all the more interesting because at the start of the season the infield was the Yanks' most pregnable weakness. They opened with Gordon on first and Rizzuto paired with his rookie sidekick, Gerry Priddy, at second. It didn't take long to show that this was not a championship combination and Manager Joe McCarthy shook up his inner works, putting Gordon at second in mid-May. From that time the Yanks gained momentum.

Gordon was glad to get back to his old stand and proved it by having his best year. He is an acrobat (a star tumbler in college) and does tricks out there on the field no other ball player can match. He is hitting .279, has knocked in 84 runs and hit 24 homers.

Besides he has been the key to the success of Rizzuto, a stocky, sparkling-eyed youngster who very definitely is one of the rookies of the year. "The Flea" has been a sensation in the field and, in combination with Gordon, has brought the Yanks within a short toss of the league double play record. Rizzuto is batting .311.

The shuffle that moved Gordon back to second installed Johnny Sturm, a rookie from Kansas City, at first base. He is only a .244 hitter and a far cry from Lou Gehrig—and some think, far from being even a Babe Dahlgren. He has not let his hitting failures affect his fielding and first base, therefore, is no weakness in the New York setup.

Third base might be. Red Rolfe, who will be 33 years old next month, played a great game there this year, but developed an intestinal disorder last month and spent a couple of weeks in a hospital. He is back with the team, though not playing, and McCarthy is counting on him in the series. As a veteran of four previous classics, his presence would be valuable. If Rolfe can't go, little Frank Crosetti probably will be the choice with Priddy also in line. Crosetti is a fine fielding shortstop and has looked adequate at third.

The kingpin of Brooklyn's infield of the entire team, in fact—is Camilli. He is the National league leader in both home runs, 34 and runs batted in, 118, although his batting average .25 is inconspicuous. 289. Besides being a power at the plate, Camilli is a sure fielder and has stopped more scatter-arm throws from his teammates than anyone ever tried to count.

Herman, who played in three World Series with the Chicago Cubs, is just about the best second baseman in the National league. At 32 he is a little past his prime, but still a person to be reckoned with. Until this year he had a lifetime batting average of .310 and although his mark has slipped to .290, he remains a real threat at bat. He is the leading hit-and-run batsman of the major leagues, an important factor in the running game the Dodgers play.

Harold (Peewee) Reese, who came into the National league a year ago with great fanfare, is the Dodgers' shortstop and in the last few weeks has developed into the sore spot of Brooklyn's infield. He is a game kid but the pressure has been heavy and his errors at crucial points have been costly. He is a .226 hitter.

FERRIDAY BULLDOGS MEET OLLA FRIDAY

FERRIDAY, La., Sept. 24.—(Special)—Ferriday High School's victorious Bulldogs, heartened by two successive triumphs, will tackle the Olla Tigers here Friday night in their third home game of the season. All games on the Bulldog schedule, with the exception of an October 24 engagement with Natchez, will be played here.

Last week the locals walloped the Class A Winnfield eleven, 26 to 0, and soundly trounced the Clarks Lumberjacks, 53 to 0, in their season opener.

Boasting the best line Ferriday has had in recent years, the Bulldogs have two powerful ends in Guy Clayton and Ernest "Bug" Davis. Joe Green, smallest lineman on the squad at 130 pounds, has also turned in stellar work at end.

Herbert "Red" Wilson and Raymond Keithley are standouts at the tackle positions, but the real power is in the middle of the line with 215-pound Lurcher "Bookie" Denham and 206-pound Harry Loomis at the guard positions and Captain James Otis Lancaster, veteran lineman, at center. Loomis is a brother of the Bulldog coach, Charles Loomis.

Smashing of the backfield are S. G. "Punk" Williams veteran quarterback, and Austin "Nubbin" Wilson, 155-pound fullback. Shelton Lancaster and Raymond "Skipper" Galloway round out the backfield and pave the way for long gains by Williams and Wilson. Arthur "Buddy" Lancaster, a 130-pound back, has performed well as a receiver.

The Texas Bureau of Accounting inaugurated records the first state-sponsored glider school in the country.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

By Hugh Fullerton, Jr.

NEW YORK, Sept. 24.—(AP)—You can forget about the pennant race now and concentrate on the World Series dope or on picking those 10 winners in Saturday's football pool. . . . The bums can clinch the flag tomorrow if the Cards blow another one. . . . The Red Birds must have known it was all over as soon as they started kicking grounders around yesterday. The tension finally got 'em. . . . If the Dodgers clinch the pennant in Boston, Jimmy Wasdell will debut as a pitcher in the home park. He's been practicing by serving them up in hitting practice. . . . Incidentally, Jimmy left the club at Philly to catch a Montreal-Newark playoff game. . . . Maybe he wanted to see what kind of guys he'll be playing with next year. . . . Bob Feller has been taking flying lessons and his instructor says he soloed for the first time a week ago. . . . From the looks of the box scores, he's been soloing most of the season. . . . Brooklyn isn't the only place where they take their baseball seriously. A judge in White Plains, N. Y., interrupted a hearing yesterday to announce from the bench that the Cards had lost a game.

COLUMBIA TO PLAY HORNETS ON FRIDAY

COLUMBIA, La., Sept. 24.—(Special)—The Class B Columbia Crimson Tide takes on its second non-conference foe this week-end when Coach Woodrow Turner takes his charges to Rayville for a clash with the Class A Hornets Friday.

With the exception of Rodrick Duchesse, regular back, who was injured in the game last week with Jonesboro-Hodge, the Tide will be in good condition for the meeting with Rayville. However, Linnis Hawkins, who has replaced Duchesse in the backfield, has been turning in some good work and the backfield is not expected to be badly hurt.

Kirby Brown and David Fisher are good prospects as ball carriers and S. A. Gregory, brother of Louisiana Tech's line ace, Garland Gregory, looms as an outstanding blocker and defensive back.

Outstanding in the Tide line last week against Jonesboro-Hodge were Center Billy Meredith, Tackle Jack Tavenhill and Guard Clarence Gilmore.

Despite the fact that Jonesboro-Hodge defeated the Tide, Coach Turner was impressed with the work of his inexperienced charges, who made 14 first downs to 15 for the Tigers. First downs at the half were 10 for the locals and 10 for the heavier and more experienced Bengals.

RANGERS READY FOR ENCOUNTER WITH INDIANS

Kilgore Eleven At Top Strength For Battle With Tribe Thursday

KILGORE, Tex., Sept. 24.—(Special)—The Kilgore Junior College Rangers, who opened their football season here last week with an impressive 40-to-6 conference triumph over the Coyotes of Weatherford Junior College, were in high gear Tuesday as they went through their last hard workout in preparation for Thursday night's renewal of gridiron rivalry with the Northeast Junior College of L. S. U. eleven of Monroe, La.

Coach Clyde Lee expressed himself as "well pleased" with the 1941 Ranger aggregation and Kilgore fans feel this is the Rangers' year to get the jump on Coach James L. Malone's double tough Indians. Three previous games between Northeast Junior College and Kilgore elevens have resulted in a victory each and one tie.

Coaches Lee and Jimmie Parks boast the fleetest backfield they have had in several seasons and a line that can hold its own with any junior college talent.

If Northeast Junior College expects to stop the locals the Tribe will have to build a defense to stop the dazzling speed of Halfback Buck Spencer, who led the touchdown parade against Weatherford. Quarterback Charlie Flowers has looked mighty good for the locals when it comes to circling either end for long gains.

End Nolan Lund, who saved the Rangers from defeat at the hands of the Tribe last year, is back at his usual position and the Louisiana invaders will find him better than ever. The Indians should remember Lund quite well as the end who snagged a pass in the final period and raced for the touchdown that gave Kilgore a 7-to-7 tie in the 1940 battle at Monroe.

The Rangers may take to the air again Thursday night. They have, besides Lund, two other stellar ends in Captain John Green and reserve Wingman Harvey Hays, and all are capable pass receivers.

The drill Tuesday was highlighted by a long offensive and defensive scrimmage against Northeast Junior College plays as scouted by Coach Parks in the Copiah-Lincoln and N. J. C. game at Monroe last week. Only a light workout, topped with a signal drill, is on tap for Wednesday.

Coach Lee announced his charges had come through Tuesday's rough scrimmage in good condition and that the Rangers would be at their full strength for the invasion.

BAND TO FOLLOW TRIBE

The Northeast Junior college band and the Indianettes, pep squad of the local institution, will follow Coach James L. Malone's Redskins on the Texas invasion tomorrow when the Indians meet Kilgore Junior college Rangers at Kilgore in the second game of the season for the two eleven.

In addition to the band and the 18-member organization many other N. J. C. followers are expected to be on hand at Kilgore college officials said last night.

The Tribe went through a lengthy offensive touch session and yesterday and spent an hour on pass defense against an expected Kilgore aerial assault. Only a light workout is scheduled today, and the Redskins will leave early tomorrow morning for Kilgore.

Meanwhile, Coach Malone has not yet decided what to do about the fullback situation. With Paul Pate, Clayton Brown and Bedford Smith, the squad's only fullback, out with injuries, Coach Malone has been trying Guard Bill Abraham and Quarterback James McElroy at the post, but hasn't definitely decided which will get the job.

THIBAUT ON SIDELINES AS GREEN WAVE WORKS

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 24.—(AP)—Jimmy Thibaut, Tulane captain and hard-ramming fullback, remained out of practice Tuesday as the Greenies worked at pass defense.

Thibaut is suffering from a badly bruised leg and Coach Red Dawson is hopeful he will be in condition to play against Boston college Saturday.

FIST FIGHT SPARKS WORKOUT AT L. S. U.

BATON ROUGE, La., Sept. 24.—(AP)—Louisiana State pitched into scrimmage with such fiery spirit Tuesday a fist fight developed between varsity Gaurd Dan Eastman of New Orleans and Big Aubrey McGehee, frosh center from McComb, Miss. The boys blew off a little steam but shook hands, and in a few moments were back hard at work.

Billy McKinney and Adrian Dodson shared the lion's share of the ball-carrying work on the varsity with Leo Bird, Bengal passing ace, still on the sidelines getting into shape after his belated start to work this fall.

A 220-pound sophomore tackle, Bill Goelzer of North Little Rock, Ark., appeared on the first team replacing the Veteran Al James and it appeared Goelzer may have won a starting berth against Holy Cross next Saturday night.

Steve Van Buren, the burly New Orleans lad who quit the squad last week when ordered to switch to blocking back rather than be ball-carrier, returned Tuesday afternoon. But it was only after assuring senior squad members with whom Coach Bernie Moore left the decision whether Van Buren would be allowed to return, that he go to work at his new assignment.

MOBLEY STAVES OFF TITLE BID

Successfully Defends Mat Crown Against Challenge Of Balk Estes

Rex Mobley, rowdy Texan who holds the light heavyweight wrestling championship of the world, successfully defended his crown here last night against Challenger Balk Estes of Elk City, Okla., but Mobley himself will admit that Estes has come closer to beating him than any matman who has attempted to annex the belt in the last year.

The match was forced to go three falls after Estes had taken the opening fall, and there was doubt that Mobley could have gone away the victor if Estes had not suffered an arm injury after he had been thrown heavily from the ring during the second fall.

The Oklahoman, who had conquered Mobley in a non-title match a week ago, started strong and won the first fall in twelve minutes with his "mystery hold" after a series of whip locks had slowed the champion down.

The second fall went first one way and then the other, until Estes trapped Mobley in a crab hold and seemed destined to win on straight falls. But the champ managed to get his legs around Estes and flip him through the ropes.

Estes hit heavily on the floor outside the ring and arose groggy. Fans who had him back into the ring, but he was in no shape to continue Mobley on mercilessly clamped Estes' left arm in a paralyzing grip. Mobley won the fall in sixteen minutes and Referee Allie "Butch" Martin had to free the helpless Estes from Mobley's grip.

The challenger attempted to slug his way to victory over Mobley at the start of the last fall but Mobley, after evading a fierce assault that sent Estes reeling into the ropes, caught Estes' battered arm in a reverse bar arm lock and the fall was over in three minutes.

The semi-final was a stellar match although Les Chapman proved himself no match for Jack Curtis, the Vicksburg flash. Curtis won with straight falls and Chapman was game and made the rubber's junior light heavy champ battle all the way to win.

Curtis was forced to go 23 minutes before winning the first fall with a Camel hold. He came back to take the second in eleven minutes with his opponent's question mark hold.

LATE SPLURGE ENABLES A'S TO BEAT YANKS

Scores In Ninth Frame Lead To Win, 9-8; Tigers Move Up

NEW YORK, Sept. 24.—(AP)—Charlie (Red) Ruffing set out for a triumphant tuneup Tuesday for the World Series and instead was knocked out of the box and charged with his sixth defeat as the Philadelphia Athletics scored twice in the ninth to beat the New York Yankees, 9 to 8.

Ruffing hit his second homer of the year to start the scoring in the third inning. Joe DiMaggio smacked his 28th roundtripper in the fourth. The Yanks kept on till they gave Ruffing a 6-to-1 lead going into the seventh. Then the A's bolted five runs across on four hits, a walk and an error. In the ninth Eddie Collins tripled to start a rally that brought two runs and victory.

Bill Dickey attained his major league record for catching 100 or more games for 13 seasons.

ompetition Keen For Posts In Lineup For Tilt With Oak Grove

GIANTS, PHILS SPLIT

The New York Giants and Philadelphia Phillies split a bargain bill Tuesday, the tail-enders taking the first game, 8 to 2, and New York retaliating in the nightcap, 8 to 6.

Cliff Melton gave the Phils six successive singles and four runs in the first inning of the opener. Paul Masterson pitched seven-hit ball to hold the lead.

The second session was nip and tuck with each club collecting 11 hits and the Phils making three errors to help swing the advantage in the Giants' favor.

TWO ARMORED DIVISIONS ARE 'WAR' ENEMIES

mander of the First armored corps, operated as a team with the Second army during the first phase of the war games last week, when General Lear was given the role of attacker.

The new problem, however, will reverse positions, placing the Second army on the defensive along a 150-mile line.

The two armored divisions may not necessarily come into combat with one another during the problem since tanks are not ordinarily used against tanks if it can be avoided under the tactical policy of Lieutenant-General Lesley J. McNair, chief of staff of the army general headquarters, who is conducting the exercises.

"Sending tanks against tanks is a costly business," General McNair explained at a critique yesterday. "The new anti-tank units are an American development and we are experimenting with them to see if they can be used against enemy tanks so that our own tanks will be free to fight other troops."

Both armored units are almost equal in strength and equipment. Each has about 300 tanks and some 1,100 other fighting vehicles. The first, however has a score of the new 30-ton M-3 medium tanks.

TWO ARMIES FACE EACH OTHER AGAIN

By Rice Yahner

WITH THIRD ARMY, Sept. 24.—(AP)—Two of the United States' four field armies faced each other across Louisiana again today, ready for a second week of simulated battle with the lessons of a week of maneuver and the criticisms of the chief of the army general headquarters to guide them.

Most of the approximately 400,000 soldiers were soaked during the night by the fringe of a hurricane that hit to the west in Texas.

The last of the field problems brought a shift of divisions that divided the power for swift, powerful action. The two armored divisions, which in the first exercises were attached to the Second army, will be divided. The Second, from Fort Benning, Ga., will remain with the Second army, but the First, from Fort Knox, Ky., will be attached to the forces of Lieutenant-General Walter Krueger.

The Third army has an offensive mission in the second phase, with Lieutenant-General Ben Lear's Second army assigned the task of defending Shreveport in the northwest corner of Louisiana.

Generally, the battle lines extend from Monroe in the north central part of the state, looping southwestward through Colfax, and Hornbeck, La., to Jasper, Tex. Numerically, the Third army still retains superiority of about two-to-one, but the addition of the armored division adds greatly to its striking power.

The maneuvers are scheduled to end September 30, but it was freely predicted that the second problem would take less time than the five days required for the first.

Lieutenant-General Lesley J. McNair, chief of staff of army general headquarters, called for more realism in the simulated war.

In a general discussion of the first week's problem, McNair declared many divisions were lax in carrying out all the functions that actual war would demand and said many of the apparently rapid troop movements were possible only by using ammunition trucks for transporting troops.

the union has turned down a company offer to raise the minimum from 55 cents-65 cents to 60 cents-75 cents, the rates varying with experience.

George Castleman, general vice-president of the union, saw the strike authorization as disposing of formalities necessary for certification of the dispute to the national defense mediation board. He said he felt the board would "sustain our position and make a strike unnecessary."

The strike of A. F. of L. seamen for higher war bonuses began 10 days ago. The 26th ship was tied up yesterday when sailors walked off the Alcoa Pilgrim when it docked at Mobile, Ala.

At his press conference yesterday, President Roosevelt asserted that the tied-up vessels have got to move; they must not remain idle. He announced that the dispute had been referred to the mediation board.

The board telegraphed the ship owners and the striking seamen that the vessels are "vitally and immediately needed for the transportation of defense materials," and asked that the strikers return to work pending the board's consideration of the dispute. A hearing in the case was set for Monday in Washington.

The A. F. of L. Seafarers International, meanwhile, balloted on the question of a general walkout which would affect 20,000 men and tie up the vessels of 25 lines.

The strikers are seeking a $60-per-month bonus for trips to the West Indies, and increases in the present bonuses (which vary according to port) for voyages into war zones.

A. C. I. O. strike yesterday halted operations at the Springfield, O., plant of the International Harvester Company, where 3,500 employes have been building trucks, some of them for the army.

The union, which recently was granted bargaining rights at the plant, halted work after negotiations toward a contract had collapsed. Among the demands were a closed shop, the check-off, paid vacations, a blanket 10-cents-an-hour wage increase, and a minimum hourly scale of 75 to 85 cents for beginners. The present wage scale was not disclosed.

A delegation from 20,000 striking Pennsylvania anthracite miners was expected in Washington today to confer with John L. Lewis, president of the C. I. O. United Mine Workers, on disputed increases in union dues and assessments. Miners in the union's district 7 quit work in protest to an increase from $1 to $1.50 a month in dues, and a boost from $2 to $6 a year in international assessments.

Conscientious Objectors See Selves As 'Pioneers'

They Labor On Peacetime Project As Soldiers Maneuver

By Annie Mae Brown

(NEA Service Staff Correspondent)

MARION, N. C., Sept. 24.—In the quiet little town of Sugar Cove, tucked away in a tiny valley 12 miles from here, 25 young "conscientious objectors" to military service have found a peace that holds fast to their ideals.

Surrounded by soldiers holding maneuvers in nearby mountains in preparation for a possible war, they believe they are helping build for the peaceful future that must eventually follow.

They are boys who filled in series 10 of the draft questionnaire. They make up Civilian Public Service Camp No. 18.

These boys are being allowed by the government to work on a government project in World war II instead of going to camps to bear arms, against their religious convictions.

Tall, dignified, white-haired Dr. Raymond Binford, life-long Quaker and president of Guilford College for the past sixteen years, who claimed a leave of absence to be director of the camp for a year, said: "They like to be called creative pioneers."

They are usually called C. O.'s.

Their community is made up of Dr. and Mrs. Binford, a plump, jolly, white-headed little woman, who will teach French and German when their educational hours begin; Miss Edith Kelsey, a nurse who lived seven years in Jerusalem with her missionary parents and was trained at the Massachusetts General Hospital in Boston; Miss Bertha Otis, dietician, who studied at Penn State College; Frank Reynolds, the project superintendent for the camp; and Mrs. Reynolds.

Their quarters were formerly a CCC camp, which the government loaned to the American Friends Service Committee for a C. O. camp. Their work is the building up of a parkway through the mountains, concurring with the provision of the government that the work accomplished must be important.

Their demeanor is one of quiet contentment that they may pay $35 a month to labor as most of them have never worked before, that they are lucky enough to have $2.50 for spending money each month, and that they do not have to bear arms.

There is a simple life. Up at 5:30 o'clock in the morning, they eat breakfast at 6 o'clock, observe meditation from 6:30 until 6:50 o'clock, make up their beds, and leave for work at 7 o'clock.

Until the camp is thoroughly cleaned and repaired, a detail of men is allowed to remain in the camp during the day. Later, all except the cooks will go the ten miles up a mountain road to plant hedges in rows on each side of the parkway to prevent soil erosion and washes across the road.

"We have a plan," said D. Burton. "There are 168 hours in the week. We allow 40 for work, 56 for sleep, ten for meals, fourteen for personal care, eight for projects around camp, and that leaves 40 hours."

Up in their educational building where classes will be held in the evenings, classes in French, German, Spanish, first aid, biology, geology, music, almost anything desired, there is a library.

"We want to start a 40-hour club of boys who will use those 40 hours for study and reading," said Dr. Binford.

"We don't give or take any credit. We just a list of the boys and their duties for the week. That's all. They are not forced to do their work, but the story goes that, at the first camp set up, the boys did more in a week than CCC boys had done in four in eight weeks in eight weeks.

Of the 52 persons at the camp, which has a capacity of 150, the majority are college men or college graduates. There are school teachers, social workers, bank clerks, advertising men, engineers, chemists, men from every line of work.

There is not a single negro. Many faiths were represented when the 52 arrived including Quaker, Episcopal, Evangelical and Reformed, Methodist, Church of Christ, Baptist, Jewish, Presbyterian, Lutheran, In Accord with the Scriptures, Catholic, Beth Tabernacle, Church of God, Jehovah's Witness, Mennonite, Pilgrim, Holiness and United Brethren.

There is no "type" of boy at camp. There is Jonathan Steere from one of the most prominent families in Haverford, Pa., who was educated at the exclusive William Penn Charter School, attended Haverford College, received his master's degree at Harvard University, and is working on his doctorate at the University of Pennsylvania.

There is a tall, scrawny boy from Yadkin county, a Jehovah's Witness, who arrived at the camp with nothing but the clothes he wore.

The problem of Louis Hilbert of Baltimore, who studied music at Johns Hopkins and at Peabody Institute, was similar to many of the boys'. His answer was the same.

He looked at his hands. "That was my family's first thought. 'What about your hands?' they asked. 'You'll get them dirty and ruin them for playing.' I told them it was little enough to give up."

3 LOSE LIVES AS WIND WHIPS COAST SECTION

tions except a few phone lines, were down at Houston.

Despite the extensive damage, there were only three known casualties, two persons electrocuted and a seaman washed into the gulf from a tanker.

White coastal areas had ample warning and were prepared for the storm. Houston was caught off guard after earlier indications were it would pass to the west.

As it moved inland the storm lessened in violence. Along Matagorda Bay the wind velocity was 100 miles an hour. By the time the storm reached Houston it had dropped to 77 miles an hour.

The weather bureau predicted it would continue to lose intensity as it curved northeastward but destructive winds of gale force likely would extend 100 miles north of Galveston. Storm warnings remained displayed east of Galveston to Morgan City, La. Hurricane warnings remained up from Matagorda to Galveston.

At the height of the hurricane, destructive tides lashed the coast from Corpus Christi to the Louisiana line. Piers fronting fashionable bayshore homes were damaged in Galveston Bay.

Camp Hulen was deserted, except for a few service troops, and the coastal communities, all with previous hurricane experience, boarded up.

Hundreds of bookmakers were brought to Houston before the storm struck here and housed in the Union station. Others were given temporary sanctuary in public school houses, public auditoriums and in private dwellings. The Red Cross arranged to feed them.

No serious damage was reported to army camps in the storm area—Camp Wallace, Camp Hulen and Ellington field.

Camp Hulen at Palacios, did not suffer even nominal damage, according to Brigadier-General John B. Maynard, commandant. A temporary frame building was blown down at Ellington field, 17 miles from Houston on the Galveston highway, but the 4,700 officers and men stationed there had been evacuated to Houston.

Seabrook, on the gulf coast 25 miles from Houston was buffeted by treacherous breakers and the highway leading to that town was under five feet of water. Telephone service in that area was out.

The historic Galveston sea wall, built after the disastrous tidal wave of 1900 which killed 10,000 persons, was reported to have withstood the battering of the heaviest sea in the past ten years.

There was an increase of more than 44 per cent in the number of automobile parking lots in the United States from 1935 to 1939. During the same period parking fee receipts increased 64 per cent.

New York

NEW YORK, Sept. 24.—(AP)—Demand for cotton futures was stimulated today by storm damage reports from Texas. Firmness in other commodities and plans for piling up foodstuffs in surplus commodities for post war needs were also influencing factors.

Trade, Wall Street and New Orleans buying absorbed speculation. Prices reacted from the best levels as buying tempered.

Late afternoon values were 11 to 15 points higher. Oct. 15.75, March 17.00, and July 17.31.

Recent tests proved that the greatest gasoline economy is effected at a speed of 35 miles an hour.

BIG BUCK JOINS HORSE IN TROT AROUND RING

SUMMIT, N. J., Sept. 24.—(AP)—A large buck deer, after looking on passively for a few minutes, suddenly jumped a fence into the trotting ring of the Union county park commission's watching riding stables and joined Miss Catherine Wheeler of Millburn, who was exercising her horse, Sandy.

The deer accompanied Sandy around the circle and took several of the jumps. Then apparently tiring of the pastime, the deer disappeared over the fence.
